

Boss, I messed up my New York photos

New York is the most photographed city in the world.

Millions of sharp, perfect, recognizable images.
Me, I manage to get there with a camera... and I miss.

I asked New York to let me take a nice picture of her. She refused. And she was right

Even the skyscrapers multiply when I photograph them.
The city refuses to remain calm.

The lines break, chaos becomes poetry.

I miss the light. The city still shines.
Urban ghosts appear in my blurry photos

Urban chaos becomes a blurred painting.

New York laughs at my technique and I love it.

My device isn't perfect. Neither am I. And that's perfect.

The monuments are duplicated, but remain recognizable or not!

She Liberty appears, fragile and elusive, like a memory that refuses to settle

Boss, I messed up my photos... and that's perfect.

Boss, I messed up my photos... and that's
perfect.

Boss, I messed up my photos... and that's
perfect.

Boss, I messed up my photos... and that's
perfect.

Boss, I messed up my photos... and that's perfect.

SIX-20.CH

"Thank you for traveling through our images... without leaving your chair! We hope these shots sparked your curiosity and gave you a little "wow" moment. Until the next visual adventure, remember: the world is always more fun to explore... one image at a time!"